THE KEY

OF KAPPA KAPPA GAMMA

SPRING 1966

The best is yet to be

Most graduating Kappas know that commencement is just what it means—"a beginning," and, using this premise in their talks, commencement speakers will emphasize the beginning of a new life. Following this truism, college graduation or commencement also will mark the beginning of a new and broader facet of Kappa life.

The welcome of thousands of Kappas organized into 367 associations and clubs across the United States, Canada and England awaits the lucky seniors who will reside in one of these areas. Throughout the world are thousands of other Kappas living in unorganized areas but still ready to give a welcome to members who may arrive in the vicinity. The four years of college are but a short span in the life of a Kappa. The leadership learned as an active, the friendships made as an active, the willingness to serve developed as an active are but a prelude to the long alumnæ years, years of friendship and service.

To the Kappa commencing her alumni life in a new city a ready-made group of friends is waiting to greet her. Likewise, the Kappa moving to alumni status in her own community will find friends and opportunities for service waiting. The organized groups want and need her, her youth, her fresh ideas, her knowledge and her enthusiasm to carry on the Kappa pattern.

In alumni life, as it was in active membership, what the Fraternity can and will mean to an individual is an individual thing. One benefits from anything by the amount of oneself that is put into it—so it is with Kappa. The close associations of undergraduate years give way to a more impersonal life with outsiders but the feeling of sisterhood prevails throughout a lifetime. Happiness and satisfaction can be yours in alumni life.

An invitation to your Kappa commencement is extended by the thousands of alumni who have preceded you for nearly one hundred years. Join an association or club now and learn what so many Kappas have come to realize, that "the best is yet to be."

A mother of three discusses the college admissions problem faced by the parents and youth of today

by MARY MARGARET GARRARD

Remember when you were a youngster and you and your friends would go in a darkened room and tell ghost stories, trying to see who could scare everyone the most?

Today, when talking about college admissions, it looks as though a lot of people are sitting in one of those darkened rooms, telling stories that frighten high school students and their parents half to death. However, snap on the lights and away goes the scariness of a ghost story session! In the same manner, a little light on college admissions makes the situation seem a lot more hopeful.

It must be admitted, of course, that portions of the ghost stories are true. It is true that the "baby boom" of World War II has reached the colleges, with 1964 freshman enrollment up to 17% and 1965 up an additional 10-12%. It is also true that more youngsters than ever are choosing to go to college. These two factors contribute to reliable predictions that in 1980 there will be 9,000,000 attending college, about twice as many as today.

It is likewise true that it is much more complex to apply for college admission than it was a decade ago when a youngster could say, "I want to go here," and was virtually assured of acceptance HERE. Nowadays only one in five or six who applies makes it into Ivy League schools and few can apply to four or five schools and be accepted by all.

Admittedly, problem #1—increased enrollment—contributes to problem #2—the complexity of admissions procedures with its frequency of turn downs. The schools worry about both of these problems. Parents and students are apt to feel more concern about the second.

How is a student judged for college admission today?

The catalogues will tell you that his record is evaluated in this general order of importance: 1) high school rank in class with particular reference to subjects taken and grades received, 2) SAT and other test scores, 3) recommendations from school personnel and personal acquaintances, 4) extra-curricular activities, 5) special considerations (sometimes) relating to geography, relatives who attended a school, foreign travel, talent in athletics, music, and so on.

There has been little change over the years in emphasis on the latter three. But the requirements for rank in high school class are going up, with even the state universities now taking about 80% of their students from the top half. The inference is that if a student didn't try in high school he's not apt to try in college, or, if he wasn't able to do high school work, college work won't be for him. Still, admissions people do look closely at records of students who pick up steam, making better grades as high school seniors than they did as freshmen. This sort of progress is regarded as a good sign.

It is also a good sign the way test scores are considered today. There was a feeling not too many years ago that there was a "cut-off point" on these. A college would not take anyone, for instance, whose SAT verbal score was less than 550, or some other set figure, perhaps in the 6 or 700's for "prestige" schools. Nowadays a college may say, as does Illinois Wesleyan University in a freshman class profile: "We have no cut-off College Board score nor do we eliminate an applicant on the basis of class rank or testing information alone. Our main concern is to try to determine the applicant's success and growth possibilities on our campus—both academically and socially."

What specifically are "College Board scores?" Since it has been only in the last decade that testing has become common for the rank and file of college-bound students, with about 1,500,000 taking SAT's alone in the past year, perhaps some explanation is in order.

The SAT (Scholastic Aptitude Test) is prepared and conducted by the CEEB (College Entrance Examination Board), is taken most often in May of a student's junior year in high school and/or December of his senior year. It is given in a three-hour long Saturday morning session, has two major sections—verbal and mathematical, produces separate scores on a norm of 200-800 for each section. CEEB suggests that tutoring or studying for the SAT is not worthwhile since the test measures native ability.

If a college is not a participant with CEEB it may require the English and math standard scores of the American College Testing Program (ACT).

These are not the only scores considered in a student's college acceptance. His high school transcript is dotted with results of tests administered throughout his high school years. There may be estimates of his IQ, the results of various skill tests, the score on his PSAT (a preliminary SAT, given in the fall of the junior year), his score on the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test. Some colleges also require a "writing sample" or one or more achievement tests over high school work in such subjects as English, math, science, language, using these either for admissions or placement, or both.

With this information at hand it might seem easy for Admissions to decide who would be accepted at a certain college, perhaps just by making a formula, then running it through a computer. However, any Admissions man will tell you that the job is not that simple. Though computers are being increasingly employed in Admissions, they are mainly used for figuring, for instance, a predicted college grade average for a student. Choosing between one student and another for acceptance is still the personal and agonizing responsibility of the Admissions staff.

Admissions' headaches include:

How to rate Student A with Student B when A went to a high school with accelerated and some college level classes, while B's school had few or none. . . . How to allow for SAT variations since some students take tests "well," others never do so well. . . . How to choose between Student A and Student B, with similar records, when no knowledge can be had (it has not yet been found possible of measurement) of the motivation of these students. . . . How to spot applicants whose potentials are hidden because they are "late bloomers". . . . How to be sure that traits such as creativity, imagination, giftedness as to character and personality, even though not along the norm of usual judgments, are not important and worth taking a chance on in some students.

Representing the thinking along such lines is the statement of Dr. Rosemary Park, president of Barnard College, who says, "We can't get away from national tests but people do not understand that scores are not always the deciding factor. The student must show an interest in learning." Robert S. Cope, head of Admissions at Wooster College, tells the students who come to him that "It is not your IQ, but your I WILL that counts!"

Besides these problems, the staggering numbers of applications received by many schools puts a heavy burden on Admissions offices, whose personnel has not always grown proportionately (another reason for the use of computers for record keeping and information gathering, such as at the Northwestern University Medical School where 1,750 applications were received for 110 places in 1965).

Also, an Admissions officer realizes that many applicants ($10 fee for each application, non-refundable) have applied at anywhere from one to three or four other schools. Nowadays students often apply to one or two hard-to-get-into schools, then to one or two which are easier, finally to one where acceptance is SURE. Called "multiple applications" (also a development of the decade), Admissions usually doesn't know which school is first choice for a student.

Always Room for One More by Mary Margaret Garrard is one of a series of articles prepared for sorority magazines by "Operation Brass Tacks," a project of the National Panhellenic Editors' Conference. Mrs. Garrard is editor of the Kappa Alpha Theta magazine and a free lance writer of family feature stories. She says about the subject of college admissions: "I must admit to more than a passing interest in this. Our first child entered college in 1956 TJS (testing just starting). Our second entered in 1962 TWU (testing well underway). Our third and youngest entered this past fall, 1965, TSGO (testing still going on). During this period I visited, with one or another of the children, around 25 colleges in the middle west and east, talking with Admissions at each of these and soaking up background to go with the research done later to prepare this article. One point I might mention to our almost entirely feminine readership is that girls have a harder time getting into college than boys. Because there are more of them applying and because more of them make better grades at an earlier age, there is more competition among them for admission and their enrollments usually close earlier than the boys."

Lacking this information, sometimes a school offers "early admission" to the qualified person who can be persuaded to decide on one school and one only. These early admission applications, submitted at least by early fall of the senior year with SAT scores from the previous May, are processed quickly and get both the school and the student "off the hook." If, by chance, a student is rejected, the timing also gives him opportunity to apply elsewhere. In general, all other acceptances are handled two ways. Some schools accept on a "rolling admissions" plan, considering each application as it comes in and giving a decision in a few weeks. Other schools have a deadline by which applications must be submitted and after which applications are dealt with in a group. Acceptances and rejections from these schools are then mailed out on the same date.

Since there are never enough early applications and acceptances to fill a roster, some Admissions then must necessarily "overadmit" (another innovation of the decade) in order to be assured of a full freshman class. Yale University, with places for 1,040 in 1965, sent out 1,425 acceptances, counting on enough rejections to get down to the number that could be accommodated housing wise. Occasionally more students accept at a given school than expected, then housing is in trouble!

However, housing is in trouble any way, with or without multiple applications. What makes the ghost stories most alarming is that the state schools, traditionally "open to all," are badly hit by the increased enrollments. For instance, in 1964, for the first time in 96 years, with applications up 26 per cent over 1963, the University of Illinois, Urbana campus, could not guarantee admission to all qualified applicants.

Even though building programs, going at a great rate over the country will gradually alleviate some of this, it is also true that other avenues must be found to accommodate the "baby boom" and the children of the following years. One of the most exciting aspects of education today is the growth of junior and community colleges. In 1964 forty-one new two-year colleges opened their doors and with federal and state aid becoming available, many more are being planned.

It is estimated that already one-fifth of all college students are now attending the junior colleges of the nation—live-at-home, two-year schools providing college credit and offering transfer opportunities onto college campuses in the junior year and also offering vocational and semi-professional courses leading to jobs. The quality of education is excellent. (For information about junior colleges, write the American Association of Junior Colleges, 1777 Massachusetts Ave., N.W., Washington, D.C., 20036).

Along these same lines state universities are establishing regional campuses, these to accommodate live-at-home students during the first two years, followed by transfer, if wanted. Plans are also underway to make some regional campuses four-year schools, as at Purdue University's Indianapolis Regional Campus where a four-year course in technology will be offered in 1966.

Thus, it can be seen that the ghost story about housing dissolves somewhat under the light of building programs and the expected increase in junior colleges. Also, the complexity of admission procedures and frequency of turndowns can be taken in stride when it is understood what the problems of Admissions are today, causing many students who are well qualified to be rejected by sheer competition of numbers.

But there is still another ghost story floating around which has to do with the "C" student. While the top student can always get in somewhere, the question is asked: What does the serious, but less talented student do, now that the state universities are so crowded?

This is a valid worry. Selectivity, once unheard of at state universities, is becoming greater, with some better known state schools already requiring a "B" average for entrance. As a matter of fact, it is reported that only the states of Kansas, Montana, Ohio, and Wyoming have laws providing a completely open-door policy for in-state students. (Out of state students have long had to meet higher requirements, often are limited to a certain percentage of the student body.) Some state schools which are open to some extent also apply restrictions on in-staters such as testing those in the lower half of their high school class, not taking students in the lower third in the autumn first semester, requiring successful work in special summer school courses, and so on.

But even with these limitations, college entrance for the student of lower rank may only be postponed, rather than refused. Though parents would do well not to push a student toward college if his high school record is very weak and he shows talents which fit better with vocational training and opportunities, there are still openings for the "C" student who truly wants to go to college.

In addition, most junior colleges accept any resident high school graduate. Often, a student who could not have made it into a school as a freshman, by compiling a good record elsewhere, finds ready acceptance as a transfer.

Then, too, there are non-profit agencies which operate for the purpose of getting schools with openings in touch with students without schools. They are 1) the College Admissions Center, sponsored by the Association of College Admissions Counselors, 610 Church St., Evanston, Ill., 60201, 2) College Admissions Assistance Center, sponsored by the Council of Higher Educational Institutions, 41 E. 65th St., New York, N.Y., 10021, 3) Catholic College Admissions and Information Center, 3805 McKinley St., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20015.

Colleges register with the centers and in turn are provided with names and records of students who register. The student who has applied for help ($15 fee) is usually sent literature by at least one school, possibly more. Acting as middlemen only (the centers do not interview, counsel or test) the centers are thus able to make available college placement for many students with high potential but modest credentials, or who have had college turn-downs due to too late application, poor selection and so on. Opportunities for September admission usually exist up through mid-August; for mid-winter admission, to mid-

January. Upperclass transfer students and graduates of two-year colleges may also apply.

This brings up another point which contributes to much of the trouble with college admissions today. Applications tend to be bunched up. In other words, too many students are applying at the same colleges, while, as indicated previously, some fine accredited schools end up with empty dormitory space come September 15.

In considering this it is necessary to jump back to the beginning of the process of admissions, when the student starts his search for a college. A more thoughtful choice of where to apply could help eliminate bunched up applications and as a result make the admissions process less frightening, less time-consuming, not to say, less costly.

According to Harry C. Biser, director of Admissions at Stephens College, "One of the real problems today is the complete lack of objectivity on the part of some students and their parents. Getting into college has become an end in itself, overlooking that the main objective is graduation four years hence."

Only through a thoughtful family conference can a student and his parents begin to decide what kind of a school to consider at all. Later, consultation with the high school counselor can give further information, plus an insight into the student's potentialities and interests from his high school record.

There are books which help, too, such as one of the good compilations of accredited colleges, giving costs, programs of study, entrance requirements, strength of faculty. There are also catalogues and other literature in the hands of the counselor, perhaps giving the freshman class "profiles" of certain schools.

When the field has been narrowed, the best way to evaluate is to make a visit to a few schools. The spring of the junior year is about the right time. Despite the number of touring high school students (Ohio Wesleyan University, for instance, which accepts a freshman class of 800, expected 3,000 high school visitors during 1964-1965). The schools manage to keep the welcome mat out. Usually a personal interview with Admissions is possible, plus a conference with someone on the staff in a student's field of interest, ending up with a campus tour. All that colleges ask in return is that visitors try to write ahead making a date for the visit and be well prepared (with high school transcript and available test scores) and reasonably brief with questions.

Back home again, it is now, before a word has been written on any application blank, that the problem of Admissions can best be tackled. Why not a clear-eyed look at the why of college choice? Perhaps the advice of President Vernon R. Alden of Ohio University is not amiss when he suggests seeking an education, not seeking entrance to a particular "name" college. It is true, many people seem to be equating the name of the school with the quality of its education. Those who are really smart look more deeply than this.

What they see is a long roster of colleges in the United States, all of which offer fine educational opportunities. It's true, some have names known to everyone; others have names less well known. Some have mailboxes overflowing with applications for entrance; others have mailboxes with plenty of room. The way is open for those students who want to fight through the crowd at Admissions, but open, too, (and much more widely open) for those willing to choose a more leisurely pace where standards are still good but competition is less keen.

Whatever the choice, and even though on occasion the stories about admissions are frightening, for the student who has a modicum of intelligence and a large amount of perseverance, there's no need to be afraid. The situation is more hopeful than hopeless. Colleges today and tomorrow will surely have room for one more.

Tall Douglas fir trees look down from lofty heights on the Tudor Gothic Spires of the University of Puget Sound in Tacoma, Washington, where the 92nd chapter of Kappa Kappa Gamma Fraternity, Epsilon Iota, was chartered March 4-6.

It took courage and vision back in 1888, for a group of hardy Methodists to found the college in this vast frontier land, just emerged from territorial days where Chief Seattle and Chief Joseph ruled the endless forest lands. Established as Puget Sound University, the first instruction came in 1890. The 1890-1903 era, with frequent moves and more frequent financial crises, has been described as a "record of sacrifice." But the school survived, and somehow the crises were met. It weathered the depression and World War II before experiencing a surge of enrollment and construction in the post war period. In 1903 the institution took the name carried today—the University of Puget Sound. However from 1914 to 1960 it was known as the College of Puget Sound. Today it is a privately endowed liberal arts school.

The University now serves more than 2,200 students in daytime classes, close to 300 in evening classes and several hundred at its university centers at nearby military bases, Fort Lewis and McChord Air Force Base, Tacoma. The faculty totals more than 100 and is well above the national average in doctoral degrees held. The philosophy of the faculty is personalized education in a friendly atmosphere. Classes are relatively small.

The 70-acre campus located in Tacoma's North End residential district was purchased in 1923. The quiet location is just a few minutes away from the libraries, theatres, museums and other cultural advantages of Tacoma, a metropolitan center of 150,000.

Surrounded by attractive lawns and natural evergreens, the University of Puget Sound contains 28 major structures. A consistent architecture of Tudor Gothic has been maintained in its construction of three new buildings including the business administration, science, music buildings and planned chapel.

With the chartering of Epsilon Iota, the culmination of more than a score of years of work and hope by the Tacoma Alumnæ Association of Kappa was realized during the eventful weekend. The first overture concerning a chapter dates to 1948 when the local groups approached various nationals for affiliation as the campus opened to national groups. The Council did not feel the time was ripe for expansion but in 1950 Eleanor Goodridge Campbell and Helen Cornish Hutchinson, Council members, made an inspection of the campus, and filed a favorable report. Still it was not felt that the time had come for a chapter in this area. The Tacoma alumnæ and the administration continued their interest in seeing a Kappa chapter come to this campus and the fraternity system prospered. In the spring of 1963 Louise Little Barbeck and Hazel Round Wagner, again made a Council inspection and enthusiastically endorsed this campus for expansion. The favorable vote was taken in the summer of 1963 and it was agreed that colonization should start in the fall of 1965.

Once again Mrs. Barbeck and Mrs. Wagner journeyed into the Northwest and with the help of Beta Pi Chapter members from the University of Washington, and Graduate Counselor, Silvia Brown, Δ A-Penn State, 24 girls were pledged to Epsilon Iota colony.

The months of waiting came to fruition on March 4 when festivities started. A buffet supper and the traditional Fireside Service was held at the home of Betty Carlson Shaub, Γ H-Washington State, Friday evening for 125 members and pledges. Special guests were Beta Pi Kappas from the sister chapter at the University of Washington who once again were on hand to send Epsilon Iota on its way as the fourth chapter in the ever-green state of Washington.

The next day, a balmy Saturday for March in the Puget Sound country, installation service for 20 charter members took place in the Masonic Temple followed by a pledge service for the four pledges of the new chapter. It was held in the chapter room complete with Kappa blue decor in the Student Union building.

Highlighting the historic weekend was the formal banquet given at the newly rebuilt Tacoma Country Club overlooking mirrored American Lake. Attending were 118 loyal Kappas from numerous chapters in the Pacific Northwest including BK-Idaho, Γ H-Washington State, B Φ-Montana, and Γ M-Oregon State. Alumnæ representatives came from Corvallis, Salem, Albany, Portland, and Eugene, Oregon; Spokane, Seattle, Pullman, Port Angeles, Everett, Auburn, and Olympia, Washington.

Now that Epsilon Iota has been installed, the 20 charter members include Bonnie Anderson, Karen Bagne, Martha Bossé, Carolyn Boyd, Jennifer Boyd, Emily Breitenstein, Sandra Browning, Caryl Ann Byrne, Mary Lou Couch, Margaret Drake, Linda Gowdy, Ann Marie Hoag, Christine MacLennan, Jane McCormick, Janie Munro, Judene Pechman, Marilyn Sand, Judith Stell, Shirley Stella, Suzanne Wigle. The first pledges are: Patricia "Kay" Bronson, Anne Pollack, Mary Dobrovich, and Susan Laing.

CHAPTER

Housing

A new home for Epsilon

by MARY JEANETTE MUNCE

E-Illinois Wesleyan

Thirty years is a long time to dream and plan but this fall Epsilon actives and alumnæ forgot every frustrated hope, every disappointing delay, and every crumpled blueprint of that period when 37 girls moved into the beautiful, three-story, new chapter house at 103 East Graham Street. Some of the alumnæ who had worked to make this possible could remember the day in the fall of 1927 when some other excited girls had moved into the first Epsilon chapter house rented for the year from Congressman Frank Funk. Since that day Epsilon had been housed in three rented houses and two houses which it owned, but always there had been the dream of building its own chapter house which would reflect at once the serene dignity of the campus and the gracious living which is a part of Kappa.

For five years the Chapter has been confronted with the problem of finding additional housing for its members. This has been due to the steady growth of Illinois Wesleyan University since World War II and to the fact that its student body has been drawn in late years from all sections of the country rather than from the local community.

Illinois Wesleyan University is planning a modest increase of students to bring the enrollment up to 1900 by 1975. President Lloyd M. Bertholf stated recently that "Wesleyan must combat the growing tendency everywhere to de-personalize students and treat them as groups or masses." With this philosophy and a quota of 50 girls in mind, the new house was planned to accommodate approximately 45 in surroundings that would be comfortable and commodious but still have the warm, friendly atmosphere of a home of refinement and culture.

The house of Georgian architectural style with Colonial features is of weathered pink and gray-toned brick with trim of dark antique green.

As one passes from the small entrance vestibule into the large foyer, one notices immediately the lovely old chandelier brought from the former chapter house, the soft red tones of its Oriental rug, the grand piano, and the two attractive oil paintings of Illinois Wesleyan's Professor Fred W. Brian. The spaciousness of the foyer makes it an ideal place for gathering for a song fest before dinner or for enjoying a serenade.

To the left of the foyer is the living room where the tone of elegance is set by the pale blue carpeting, French toile draperies and off-white walls. Sofas and chairs are red, off-white, gold, and beige. The fireplace screen, given by Betty Klemm Holzhauser, was made by her mother.

To the right of the foyer a corridor leads to the house director's quarters. These consist of an attractive living room with draperies and chairs of a gold and green floral print and an avocado rug; a bedroom with antiques green furniture; and a bath. At the end of the corridor is a guest room and bath. Blue floral draperies with matching chair, off-white spread and walls, and antiques blue furniture make it a restful room. Across from this room is a half-bath for men guests.

Beyond the foyer one looks directly into the large dining room. It features antique brass chandeliers and round walnut tables. The upper half of the walls are a lovely, soft, Wedgewood blue and the ceilings in this and the adjoining library have patterned acoustical tiling which was chosen by the late Archie Schaeffer, architect, as he began designing the house before his death. Natural linen material, loosely woven has been used for the windows in the library and doors of the dining room which open on to a terrace which is yet to be completed.

Off the corridor on the left of the foyer and with folding doors opening into the dining room is the Hester Hart Hawks library. This corner room, named for Mrs. Hawks who served many years as President of the House Board, with its books, sofas, comfortable chairs and card table is a popular place for meeting friends. By opening the folding doors, the foyer, dining room, and library may be used for dances and dinners.

At the opposite corner of the house is the large, commodious kitchen. It is painted a cheerful turquoise and consists of two areas separated by a long counter. One of these is for the preparation of food and the other is for serving and clean-up activities. Stainless steel sinks in each area, a refrigerator, garbage disposal, large stove, and cutting board make working in this kitchen a pleasure.

Fire stairs on either end of the house double as fire escapes and connect all three floors and basement. On the second floor 16 two-girl bedrooms, designated by Greek letters, and painted in pastel colors open on to a corridor which surrounds a central core. This core has closets for storing formals and linens at one end and a utility room at the other. The latter has a sink for hand laundry, a "drip-dry" area and ironing board. The main section consists of a large room with bath and toilet facilities.

On the third floor there are at present two three-girl bedrooms and a large dormitory which is being used as a study room. The center core and front half of this floor are yet to be finished.

In the basement are a chapter room with large closets for archives and chapter equipment, a recreation room, an attractive workroom which has a sink, refrigerator and hotplate for the girls to use for late snacks, a laundry room, a storage room for rush materials, skits, and float decorations, a kitchen storage room, a room and lavatory for the use of the cook and maid, and the mechanical room.

Literally hundreds of Kappas have given of their time, material resources, and talents to make this house possible. Each successive House Board, working unselfishly and devotedly, has left its mark. However, for the realization of this long cherished dream special mention should be made of Rachel Hodge Fuller who had the foresight to urge and arrange for purchase of the present site; Miriam Cavins Hiltabrand, who served as House Board President during many of the planning years and who, with Peggy Minch Rust, headed the decorating committee; Elizabeth Jones Winters who was treasurer in the critical years and who, with Esther Hawks Stephenson, had charge of the building program; Marianne Fearheiley Hart who is currently serving as treasurer; present House Board President, Alice Strayer Bach who had the responsibility of coordinating the work of all the committees; Marjorie Kirkpatrick Hoopes, secretary of the Board; Virginia Jarrett Vellenga, and Pat Hartmann Yoder, Bloomington Alumnae Association President. Heartfelt thanks are also due to the Epsilon Province President, Mrs. Rolland H. McCoy, for her unflinching encouragement; to the Fraternity Housing Committee for their interest and timely advice; to the Fraternity, itself, and to Illinois Wesleyan university for their generous help in financing the project.

by PHYLLIS FORWARD SIMPKINS

Δ X-San Jose State
House Board Chairman

Recently completed, the Delta Chi House at San Jose State College was faced with many uncertainties from start to finish, the most serious being a plot of land. San Jose State College, the home of Delta Chi, is in downtown San Jose, California. As is the case with many cities in California, San Jose has grown from 50,000 population following World War II to a present population of over 350,000. Keeping pace, San Jose State College has increased in enrollment from less than 3,000 to its present size of over 20,000 students.

Reflecting this enormous growth, San Jose State has expanded on a continuous basis during the post war years, and at all times it has been difficult for the building program to keep pace with student requirements.

Unfortunately, the college did not possess sufficient ground for their expansion and it was necessary for them to acquire private property on a random basis. Their progress was directly related to their budget, and it has been Delta Chi's problem to outguess the acquisition program. To make a long story short, we have been shuffling property for several years, constantly attempting to finalize a location which would be in the heart of activity yet safe from the long arm of acquisition.

Finally, it appeared that fraternities and sororities on campus had established a solid wall at Eleventh Street which would stop the growth of the college in an eastward direction. Delta Chi, in order to obtain adequate ground space for our new house, purchased four older homes. It was like a game of chess—trying to hold our position and yet trying to better ourselves.

In 1959, members of the House Board, now experts in real estate, decided that the Eleventh Street location was ideal and plans were finalized for our new home.

One end of the living room

Having started in April, 1964, our home was finally ready for occupancy on March 26, 1965. Of traditional design, our finished home drew many comments when contrasted to the typical contemporary designs which prevail in California.

Entering the foyer, the living room of this 24,000 square foot home is to your right. In soft green-beige, the room is accented in flame color with dark rosewood end tables and a grand piano which was a gift of the Palo Alto Alumnae Association.

Directly behind the living room is the lounge which is in shades of flame, avocado green and gold. Both the lounge and dining room open onto a large exposed aggregate patio surrounded by a grape stake fence.

The lovely dining room seats 90 at various size tables which can be readily adapted to many

More about Kappas with the Peace Corps

Mary Bardone, Δ Z-Colorado College, traveled with the Peace Corps to the Ivory Coast of Africa. She writes: "Well here I am in the bush of Africa—a Saturday morning and I'm sitting here in my regular Saturday outfit of jeans and a sweatshirt, in my nice five room house, with my servant running around accomplishing my orders, and it is cool. If you are amazed, boy, you can't imagine how it amazes me every day—and this is the PC??

"Katiola is the pottery center on the Ivory Coast but that is its only highlight—it is a small village about in the Northern middle of the IC and although only 250 miles from Abidjan, the beautiful modern capital which could compete with any European or American city, it is a nine hour ride in a jeep on a dusty, filthy, holey dirt road. It has one paved street, one church, one high school, two little stores and that's it. We have electricity only four hours a day, from 6:30-10:30, so sleeping hours are pretty regulated especially since the roosters start crowing at 5 A.M. and the whole village is up. We have to go into Bouake, the second largest city, twice a month for supplies.

"Because of its smallness and its lack of diversity, Katiola is one of the friendliest towns in the IC. I have really gotten to know the Africans and every day the house is over-run with them—the students come to study (they usually don't have electricity and would have to study under the street lights if they didn't come here), the kids come to play with my dolls or to color, and the ladies come to sew and just to talk.

"I teach the ladies reading, writing in French, and sewing—this is really a horrendous task as the African lady who is supposed to be here to teach has not arrived yet and so for over a month now I've been struggling through the afternoons when 25 ladies descend upon me, only a few of them able to speak French, but they are just darling and I really love them.

"Even the nightly war against the lizards and cockroaches is settling down to a routine of running for the broom and the insecticide and calmly giving them the gas and watching them die.

"We get meat here and so I have really been eating well. IC produces a lot of peanuts and you can even buy peanut butter—sold open in the hot and smelly market place. After you boil it for 15 minutes to kill the germs you can have peanut butter and jelly sandwiches. For the first two weeks we didn't have running water and now we have it intermittently. Of course hot water is unheard of. We have a well that the houseboy gets water from, then he carries it over to a barrel on the other side of the house and fills up the barrel, then there are two barrels on the top of a cement pole, and the water in the bottom barrel then has to be pumped up to the top barrel. Then the water running down into the house gives us the water pressure. Not bad, but it is unbelievably dirty.

"The African people are really beautiful. The women are a colorful and graceful sight in their bright and multicolored dresses, carrying their babies on their backs, and carrying huge baskets of anything on their heads. Their hair is shaved just like a man. . . . This is the life and I really do recommend it for every one of you—it is the most satisfying and worthwhile experience that you could ever have. Already I cannot imagine leaving this village and the people."

Judith Stone Aderblom, Γ Γ-Whitman, and her husband Douglas, are headed for a Peace Corps assignment in Turkey. . . . Elizabeth "Bibby" Moore, B T-West Virginia, took her Peace Corps training in Hilo, Hawaii before leaving for Malaysia in December. She expects to teach English as a foreign language in secondary education. . . . Another B T-West Virginia Kappa, Nancy Swing, is working in the Washington office of the Peace Corps. . . .

Maureen Orth, Π<sup>Δ</sup>-California (Berkeley) has had a school named for her in a small and very humble village in the mountains of Colombia. For the first time an education is being provided for 40 little Colombians in the Ecola de La Marina—so-called because the villagers can't pronounce Maureen.

According to an article appearing in the Oakland Tribune "There was no school in the nameless village before, and a child would have had to walk 15 miles over dirt roads to the nearest one." The work and the money for the building were contributed by Maureen and the villagers

Two convention speakers

Banquet Speaker

Poetess and author, Alice Boyd Stockdale, who as a housewife is known as Mrs. Lee E. Beaird, a member of Delta Kappa Chapter at the University of Miami, will be the banquet speaker the final evening of Convention week. Mrs. Beaird's recent marriage has taken her from Coral Gables, Florida to Bronxville, New York. Her home in Coral Gables will remain as a part-time residence but Delta Kappa has lost a valued adviser.

Before the death of the late Grant Stockdale, the banquet speaker lived in Dublin, Ireland as the wife of the United States Ambassador. Her love for that country and its people is affectionately told in her book of poems, To Ireland with Love reviewed in THE KEY, Spring, 1964. She is a member of the Poetry Society of America and has had her poetry published in a number of major magazines.

Moving to New York with Mrs. Beaird are her two youngest children. The three older children have already started careers of their own.

Advisers' Meeting

Guest speaker for the Advisers' meeting during Convention week will be Florence Bird Stevenson, T N-Arkansas, Dean of Women, University of Tulsa. Daughter of a now retired Brigadier General of the Army, Mrs. Stevenson, was born in North Carolina but spent most of her early life at Army installations in the midwest. In later years she has lived in France, Germany, Japan and considered the Washington, D.C. area as home. Today Tulsa is home to her and her two sons, Gardner and Biran.

Dean Stevenson has worked in recreation, real estate, social work, as pentagon secretary and for the Episcopal Church. She holds her Master's degree from Ohio State University where she was also on the Dean of Women's staff. She is a member of the National Association of Women Deans and Counselors, and American Association of University Women.

ABROAD

It seems that not only the active members who are studying abroad are interested in this column. A number of alumnæ are writing the editor with information about their overseas residence. So instead of this column being strictly for actives it will become an exchange of information for both actives and alumnæ who are living out of the country. Actives please continue to use the form at the bottom of the page.

Eight members of B B<sup>A</sup>-St. Lawrence, will participate next fall in the Junior Year Abroad program. Those who will spend a few weeks in Paris before beginning their studies in Rouen, France are: Leanna Abraham, Agnes McCann, Susan Chauvin, Peggy Ives, Mimi McGavern, Harriet Moffatt, Jane Parsons and Sally Slack. . . . Toni Lee Marinaccio, B B<sup>A</sup>-St. Lawrence, spent last summer with the Experiment in International Living in India. . . . Diane Shafer, F Z-Arizona, is studying Scottish literature at the University of Edinburgh, Edinburgh, Scotland until July, 1967. She may be reached at Peffermill house, Peffermill Road, Edinburgh 9. . . . Diane Lundin, B P<sup>A</sup>-Cincinnati, is studying Spanish at the University of Salamanca, Salamanca, Spain this Spring. Her address is c/o Sres. de Jaen Valazquez, Generalissimo Franco, 23,4,4°. . . .

Eleanor Gray White (Mrs. John C.), B X-Kentucky, has recently moved to Paris, France. Although no address is available there she may be reached by writing CMR 057, APO, New York 09324. She has been in Turkey but is following her husband and their four children to Paris where he will be working for Levitt, builders. . . . Frances A. Spetnagel, B N-Ohio State, is working in Frankfurt, Germany. No address is currently available. . . . Joanne Stevenson Voogd, Δ T-Southern California, is living in Wassenaar, Holland where her husband is president of the European division of Sels. Joanne teaches Sunday School at the American Church in The Hague and is active in the American Women's Association. She recently planned the reception to welcome the new American ambassador to The Netherlands. . . . Kathy Wittkoff, Δ T-Southern California, is planning to work as a tri-lingual secretary for an American company in Geneva, Switzerland. . . .

Beta Omega Chapter
University of Oregon
Eugene, Oregon

Ninety years at Oregon

Familiar sight to Oregon students is the Dads' Gates.

In 1872, the Oregon Legislature passed an act to establish "the University of the State of Oregon." Economic problems and bitter controversies over the proposed site delayed the opening for four years. Residents of Eugene, a small community south of Portland, were quick to enter the competition to become a "University town." They offered to construct a building on 17.75 acres just outside Eugene, and began to work hard to raise money required to finance a campus. By 1876, the Legislature was convinced the University should be built in Eugene, and in October classes began.

There were five members of the first faculty, three professors and two women instructing the preparatory classes. One hundred and seventy-seven students registered for the fall term in 1876.

Last fall, 12,200 students enrolled at the University of Oregon, which now has a faculty of over 800. Those first Oregon freshmen had only three courses of study to choose from. This year's entering students have a choice of 48 graduate and undergraduate degrees to pursue in any one of the 30 liberal arts departments or the seven professional schools of architecture and allied arts, business administration, education, health, physical education and recreation, journalism, law, and music. The University also maintains medical, dental, and nursing schools at its Portland campus.

In addition to the regular courses, superior students have the opportunity to participate in the Honors College. Unique to public colleges and universities, this program offers the advantages of a small, private school with seminars and research programs. At the same time, the students have the resources of a large university at hand to supplement their specialized studies.

Among the 1965 fall term students were 2,800 graduate students making up more than 23 per cent of the student body. This is the largest number of graduate students at any Oregon college or university. The National Defense Education Act has awarded 317 fellowships to the University since the NDEA program began. This is the largest number of graduate fellowships awarded to any university in the nation.

Since John Wesley Johnson was appointed the first president of the University of Oregon, 12 men have held that post. Arthur S. Flemming, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare under Eisenhower and former Ohio Wesleyan University president, has served as president since 1961.

Arthur Flemming, President, University of Oregon

The campus now occupies 220 acres in the east part of Eugene, Oregon's second largest city. Plans for further construction are constantly being formed. This year a new two story student health center was completed. In the near future, a library addition will be completed. On the drawing board are more dormitories and a new stadium to be completed by the 1967 football season.

The pioneering students were offered only literary societies and debate leagues as extra-curricular pastimes. The 1900's brought a change with the institution of the first campus fraternities and the organization of the Associated Students of the University of Oregon. A book dealing with the history of the school states, "The Greek letter fraternity became not only the center of formal social life but in many respects the important unit which conditioned other activities."

Today, many student activities stem from the Erb Memorial Union, named for a former University president, Donald M. Erb. The Union houses a dining room, fountain, cafeteria, ballroom, and art gallery. There is a listening room for classical music, one for jazz, both piano and combo practice rooms, student offices and meeting rooms, a 16-lane bowling alley, pool and billiard tables, and facilities for table tennis and shuffle board.

There are numerous campus clubs to fit almost anyone's interests from mountain climbing to politics. There are 16 national sororities and 21 national fraternities at Oregon. National scholastic honoraries have eight chapters on the campus, including one for liberal arts, science, law, journalism, music, business administration, and one each for freshman men and women.

The housing facilities have grown along with the campus and activities. The first students were truly pioneers when one considers the way they had to live while attending the University. There was no school-sponsored housing, and students lived in what few boarding houses there were available across town. Tales are told of the students who "batched" it, living on only potatoes and cracked wheat. Today students are provided with six large dormitories serving a more varied menu. There are also many family units available for married students.

The educational programs at the University attract many foreign students. Six hundred and forty-six students from other nations registered for fall classes in 1965. The majority were from Canada, with China (Taiwan), Korea, Hong Kong, Japan and India well represented. Once a year, these students organize to present the International Festival, two days of variety shows and bazaars. Last year the festival drew national recognition and was formally opened by the Ambassador to the United States from Zambia. Highlights from the show were broadcast over the world-wide Voice of America.

In May, 1965, President Johnson and the National Science Foundation announced a grant of $4 million would be awarded to the University of Oregon. President Johnson noted that the University is the first state university in the nation to receive a large federal grant to aid in its development as a top educational center. In his announcement, the President said he hoped the University would develop into one of the centers "which set standards of excellence and educate teachers and researchers for other colleges and universities as well as industry."

by GRETCHEN YOUNG and

OLIVE BARKER ATKINSON

B Ω-Oregon

A visitor to Beta Omega might find it startling that a chapter which has led the Oregon sorority groups scholastically for six consecutive terms should have in its vocabulary jibberish such as "Sigwabs," "Vegoks," and "Zarchaks." To many alumnæ, however, these strange words quickly bring to mind memories of the annual freshman "walkout." This event is climaxed by the arrival of the freshmen at the house with a mysterious class name, individual nicknames, a newly composed "rowdy" song and a sentimental song. Not until they present a skit at the end of their senior year does the class reveal to the rest of the Chapter the meaning of their name and significance of the nicknames.

Equally hard to believe is that the outstanding chapter Beta Omega is today could have had its beginning as just an idea in the minds of five University of Oregon girls way back in the spring of 1908. That autumn these girls and four others became a group and took the name of Gamma Delta Gamma. In 1909, they applied informally to Kappa Kappa Gamma for a charter. Their original interest in this fraternity came from their house mother, Agnes Leach Dunstan, who was not only the mother of one of the girls but also from Omicron Chapter at Simpson College. She kept alive their hope of Kappa membership during the years in which they prepared their formal petition. During this period they held the scholarship record for the University and were, as their successors were to be, outstanding participants in all college activities open to women.

In the autumn of 1912 the charter was granted by the Fraternity and on January 11, 1913, the Gamma Delta Gamma group became Beta Omega chapter of Kappa Kappa Gamma. Grand President, Eva Powell, assisted by members of Beta Pi Chapter at the University of Washington in Seattle conducted the installation services for the 10 charter members. Regarded as Beta Omega's founders were Neta Bartlett (Daly), Clementine Cutler (Williams), Olive Donnell (Vindon), Carolyn Dunston (Kerr), Ruth Hardie (Milliken), Lilla Irvin (Leach), Alice Larsen (Huggins), Loretta Showers (Rossman), Hazel Wightman (Bastian), and Frances Young. Of these ten, four are still living and two attended the Iota Province Convention held in Eugene in 1963, Beta Omega's fiftieth year.

This was the fourth time that the Chapter served as hostess to their Province Convention. The first time was in 1923, the second in 1935 and the third in 1947.

Alumnæ of these earliest days will remember the difficulties the chapter faced just before and after the installation. However, they will also remember the many long hikes over the neighboring hills (after one the whole house succumbed to poison oak), the picnics up the beloved Millrace, the "feeds" around the fireplace, and such escapades as setting off fake burglar alarms painstakingly concealed from the house director.

For 12 years the new Beta Omega Chapter occupied a large house originally leased by the Gamma Delta Gamma group. In 1925, however, the Chapter moved to its own newly built house on the corner of Fifteenth and Alder. With alterations this house has continued to be the chapter house. Today it appears likely that by the fall of 1968 Beta Omega will have a new chapter house, located on Harris Street at Eighteenth Avenue, just across from the School of Music. In this new house the future of Kappa at Oregon should be as fine as its past.

The past was not always so carefree. In 1916 when the Chapter was still in its infancy, no seniors returned to lead it. During the depression it seemed that Kappa would be represented one autumn by only two girls; the two were affectionately called "Beta" and "Omega." The situation was saved when the house director somehow found an assortment of boarders to help pay the bills. In 1949 when the University administration adopted the policy that all freshman women must live in the dormitories, many changes and adjustments had to be made by all sororities. Beta Omega's fine reputation and organizational efficiency helped it take this potential setback in stride.

Despite the Willamette Valley's recreational lures "from sea level to ski level" the Oregon Kappas have always been well-represented in campus honors and activities. Since 1919 at least six "wearers of the key" have won the Gerlinger Cup awarded each year to the University's most outstanding junior woman. Many have been elected to Mortar Board. Several have been president of the Association of Women Students. Many have been named to scholastic honoraries. In 1942 five of the six seniors in the house were elected to  $\Phi$  B K. This was both a pride and a problem; as it was customary for the house to pay for the Phi Beta keys, the treasury was temporarily in distress.

Beta Omega beauty and charm have also been recognized year after year as shown by the rosters of campus queens. Sometimes a near-monopoly has existed as in 1961 when four of the five girls on the Sigma Chi Sweetheart Court were Kappas. "Duck" teams have been cheered on by many Kappa rally squad members. In 1958 four of the six Oregon coeds elected to rally were Kappas.

Not to be outdone by their predecessors, Beta Omegas of the present are found in every facet of campus life. Four girls, Betsy Clifton, Susan Martin, Nikki Schaeffer, and Clella Winger were tapped last spring for Kwama, the sophomore women's honorary; Clella is now president of that organization. Kappas Phyllis Hull, Sherry Koblick, Andrea Lee, Carolyn Wood and Gretchen Young compose 25 percent of Phi Theta, the junior women's honorary. Andrea is also president of Angel Flight, the ROTC honorary, supported by Betsy Clifton, Nikki Schaeffer, Clella Winger, Jill Harding and Ann Williams. Margaret Elkins is in M  $\Phi$ , the music honorary; Karen Korb is a member of  $\Phi$  X  $\Theta$ , the national business women's honorary; Kathryn Williams belongs to  $\Pi$   $\Lambda$   $\Theta$ , the education honorary.

Karen Korb, the house president, is president of Presidents' Council. Gretchen Rittenour serves as Panhellenic standards chairman, Kathryn Williams as general secretary of Canoe Fete. Carolyn Wood, once an Olympic gold-medal winner in Rome, is now business manager of the Oregana, the campus year-book.

The 3.003 grade average of Beta Omega last winter term was the highest average ever achieved by an Oregon living group. Twelve girls, almost one fifth of the Chapter, made the Honor Roll each term in 1964-65 with a 3.5 GPA or higher. Several of these same girls are also members of the freshman women's scholastic honorary,  $\Lambda \Delta \Delta$ . In May the Burt Brown Baker Scholarship Cup for outstanding academic performance was awarded to Kappa, as was the Josephine Evans Harpham Award for the second consecutive year. The latter trophy is presented annually to the living organization having the most outstanding library reading program.

Kappa queens now at Oregon include Mary Ann Hagan, Kathryn Williams, Sandra Kiser, and Dana Horton, SAE "Little Sisters of Minerva;" Christine Walker, Phi Sigma Kappa "Moonlight Girl;" Jean Magnano, Sig Ep "Swamp Stomp Queen;" Linda Jackson, a

1965 Homecoming princess; Kathleen Phipps, Kappa Sigma "Stardust Girl" and a 1964 Homecoming princess; and Gretchen Young, "Sweetheart of Sigma Chi."

Frequently the house participates in university traditions. For Junior Weekend 1965 the girls helped the Sig Eps build the Queen's float, the first of 13 floats to be pulled down the Millrace during the annual Canoe Fete. These same two groups working together had won the sweepstakes the year before. In the 1965 All-Campus Sing Kappa joined with Delta Upsilon to be one of the four mixed groups chosen for the finals. Along with other sororities Beta Omega introduces its pledges to the campus annually at the "Pledge Presents" tea, which in years past was less dignified and known as the "Bunion Derby."

Several chapter traditions, pleasant ones, seem to have been lost through the years. Gamma Mu at Oregon State and Beta Omega no longer have a joint function at Founders' Day. The lovely "Christmas Serenade" with its white collars, white candles, sacred songs and a walk through the cool night to the windows of favorite fraternities has been forgotten. Yet many chapter traditions have endured: the "apple polishing party" for favorite teachers at which the whole house joins the professors in a game of charades; a Kappa-Pi Phi birthday dinner when keys are worn slanted and arrows are worn straight; the name-carved activity paddle given each term to the freshman most active on campus; the lighted candle passed around the room until the girl blows it out to announce her pinning or engagement; the spring awards banquet at which trophies are given to the outstanding freshman, most friendly sophomore, most helpful junior, and the senior who most typifies Kappa. At this dinner a "wise old owl" is given to the big-little sister team with the highest GPA and Dean Schwering's key to the freshman with the highest scholarship.

Unique to Beta Omega Chapter is a revolving emergency loan fund started by the Eugene Alumnæ in 1945 in memory of Hazel Prutsman Schwering, a Kappa who was Oregon's Dean of Women. Temporary loans from this fund have helped many girls in times of unexpected financial crisis. The Eugene Alumnæ Association, which this year represents 23 Kappa chapters, provides the personnel for the house and advisory boards of the Chapter. This group entertains the pledges at a fall dessert and the seniors at a spring buffet dinner. Sending snacks to the house during exam week, and presenting pledges with Kappa symbol gifts are just examples of ways the local alumnæ contribute to chapter morale. The Eugene Mothers' Club has made many contributions to the house varying from a "lovely Chinese skirt for the piano" in 1930 to hair dryers and vacuum cleaners in later years.

The largest Oregon Kappa Alumnæ Association is in Portland. It has been outstanding in its support of Beta Omega as has the Portland Mothers' Club, which recently gave the house a colored television set.

As others have been helpful to them, the active Beta Omegas have been interested in helping others. In World War I most of the spare time was devoted to Red Cross work. "We also had a great deal of pleasure in sending off eight packages of baby clothes to the Bellevue Children, besides adopting a French orphan. We own thrift stamps, a liberty bond and are also trying to do all we can to conserve on all points." The chapter history further records that in 1942-43 all the girls donated blood to the local blood bank and collected much scrap metal. Too, in 1942 "due to the national emergency, at the spring formal we danced to a radio instead of an orchestra." In 1951-52 the Chapter adopted a German war orphan to whom they sent boxes and letters.

Currently Beta Omega participates in community service in the city of Eugene. Last fall the Kappas joined the Chi Phis in the United Appeal Fund Drive. On Halloween each year they sponsor a party with the Sigma Chis for Eugene's under-privileged children. An especially touching service project is the Valentine's party with the Sig Eps at the Pearl Buck School for mentally retarded children. Several girls this year are serving as junior counselors at the high school level, aides for the Retarded Earn and Learn Program, Brownie troop leaders, swimming instructors for the handicapped and Sunday School teachers. Last year the Chapter won the Oregon Citizenship Cup, given to the living organization outstanding for scholarship, leadership and service to the university, community, state and national government.

An international flavor has been added to the house during several years when girls from France, Sweden, and Switzerland have been invited to make the Kappa house their Oregon home for the academic year. An increasing number of Beta Omegas spend time during their undergraduate days travelling and studying abroad and return to Oregon to graduate. At a dinner last fall the Chapter entertained 20 Dutch exchange students who returned the hospitality by visiting the chapter house on St. Nicholas Day dressed in their native costumes.

Certainly not all Beta Omegas can be as outstanding as botanist Lilla Irvin Leach (class of 1910), fashion coordinator Cathleen Virginia Tharaldsen Catlin (class of 1929), writer and novelist Nancy Wilson Ross (class of 1924), pediatrician Dr. Margaret Tingle (class of 1930), or educator Hazel Schwering. Still, the Chapter continues to grow strong and fine as each girl contributes her best in her own special way. The outstanding girls pledged this year have as their heritage one of the University of Oregon's strongest living

The Tiny Golden Whistle by Marion Elizabeth Guyton. Vantage Press. Illustrated. 64 pages. $2.50.

Of special appeal to the lollipop set is a new, delightful, little tale of a small boy lost, his dog and a tiny golden whistle that saves the day. No ordinary whistle this, for with each musical note out pops another surprise to lend a helping hand on the journey home.

This is the world that children love; a never-never land of elves small enough to slide down moonbeams and live in coffee cans; of an enchanted forest and its menagerie of strange and wonderful creatures; and of a huge golden bird who hovers near to protect and guide the way through Seven-Lands. Where else could a child and his friends be trapped by Slick the Smart Spider, who smokes big black cigars and drinks apple cider, or help a green as grass donkey who's not very bright.

Although The Tiny Golden Whistle, a charming fantasy is designed for the four to eight age level, it is not the pre-schooler's usual picture book. However, it is especially suited for small tot nightly reading, for each chapter represents a day of the week starting on Sunday and ending in Saturday-Land. By the inclusion of a number of songs introducing the most important characters this reviewer felt the book not only a pleasing choice for school age children but to be particularly adaptable to children's theater or television use.

A native of Evanston, Illinois, Marion Elizabeth Guyton attended Hillsdale College in Michigan where she became a member of Kappa Chapter. She later joined the classified advertising staff of the Chicago Tribune and when circumstances placed her in Honolulu during the attack on Pearl Harbor, she remained there to work with the Signal Corps. Eventually returning to Andrews Field, Washington, D.C., Miss Guyton served in the Women's Air Force. At the end of her tour of duty she returned to newspaper work becoming a reporter and special feature writer for the Sturgis, Michigan, Daily Journal and later devising children's picture puzzles which ran as a feature in the Tucson Daily Citizen. Now Mrs. George L. Russell, she and her husband live on Point Loma in San Diego, California, where the author's activities include the local Kappa alumnae group.

You the Law and Retirement by Virginia Lehmann. U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. 36 pages. For sale by Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C., 20402. 25¢.

With a combined annual income of some $35 billion dollars, the retired population in the United States is now considered big business and, as far as the American businessman is concerned, a lucrative market for housing, goods and other services. Thus, for the man or woman over 65 years of age, retirement involves a variety of decisions which should be made carefully, wisely and, ideally, before retirement actually takes place.

To assist the retiree, the United States Department of Health, Education and Welfare has sponsored a new informative pamphlet designed to remind the older person of some of the problems he must face. Since many of the decisions to be made will involve some sort of legal transaction, this small booklet is basically concerned with legal matters; and its purpose is to advise the retiree why, how and when to see a lawyer. In urging use of the law both before and after retirement, this publication hopes to inspire the elder citizen to invest in a legal checkup thus assuring, to some degree, that peace and tranquility will accompany the golden years.

Well qualified to assemble such a booklet, Virginia North Lehmann received her law degree from the University of Wisconsin where she became a member of Eta Chapter. A trained, experienced social caseworker, her background also includes 17 years of service as staff attorney with the Legal Aid Bureau of the United Charities of Chicago. Author of Guardianship and Protective Services for Older People, she and her family at present live in Washington, D.C.

The Equinox (A Novel Of Rome In The Time Of Commodus) by Carol Saylor. J. B. Lippincott Company. 287 pages. $4.95.

In The Equinox the author has caught the betwixt and between of a moment in history. It is the second century A.D. The setting is ancient Rome. The reign of Marcus Aurelius, last of the so-called Five Good Emperors, is drawing to a close. With his death and the inopportune succession of the weakling, Commodus, will begin the decline and fall of the Roman Empire. The time is also ripe for other changes; for the old gods are dead or dying and, momentarily, the religious fate of the Romans lies between old forms of worship and a strangely attractive new way of life called Christianity.

With this as background, the author relies upon a fictitious Manlius Valerius to tell the story. Briefly, it is a tale of love and hate, of greed and charity, of betrayal and loyalty as the forces of good and evil struggle to possess the souls of men. For Manlius there is a choice;

it is for him to accept the depravity and injustice of the court of Commodus or to deny it; to willingly embrace Cybele, the religious mistress of his emperor, or to return to Christianity, the faith espoused by his own martyred mother. In mastering his destiny, Manlius paints a vivid picture of his personal and the general dilemma of the times revealing an era that has long been obscured in the mists of the past.

In resurrecting this past, the author has dredged up both fact and fantasy; for some of the figures are straight out of history while others have been created to portray a far removed time and place. Filled with the vitality of believable people and events that might have been, The Equinox, in semi-historical form, presents a compelling, entertaining story of history in the making as well as an accurate and minute account of second century everyday life.

Born in Oklahoma City and raised in Ardmore, Carol Clough Saylor received her B.A. and M.A. degrees in English at the University of Oklahoma where she became a member of Beta Theta Chapter and  $\Phi\text{BK}$ . As Mrs. Paul D. Saylor and mother of four children, the author somehow manages to write four hours a day. Her book is probably one of the few—excluding White House memoirs—to have been written in a butler's pantry converted to a writer's study by the mere addition of a typewriter plus a writer. At the moment the Saylor family make their home in Ardmore, Oklahoma, where they have lived for the past 12 years.

Christmas Pantomime by Agnes Billane. Privately printed by Rauch & Stoeckl Printing Co., Inc. 60 pages.

During the years this section has tried to represent the works of as many Kappa authors as possible. Occasionally a publication found within these columns will be out-of-print, offered in limited edition or perhaps privately printed so that copies are not readily accessible to the reader. Christmas Pantomime is just such a book. Privately printed in limited edition, it has never been offered for sale to the general public. Yet the idea that it espouses should be passed on to readers of THE KEY as much as the Kappa statistics of its author.

Born Agnes Darrow, the author is a  $\Phi\text{BK}$  and member of Gamma Omega Chapter as well as a 1936 graduate of Denison University in Granville, Ohio. Later as Mrs. John M. Billane and the mother of four children, she and her husband lived in the Middle-East and the Far-East but it was not until a move to England that she was first introduced to the pleasant custom of Christmas plays given for children during the holiday season. So well accepted are these plays and pantomimes that they have become part of the English traditional Christmas along with hanging up stockings, singing carols and decorating trees.

The idea of giving plays especially at Christmas time originated in the churches where the story became part of the ceremony. As both sacred and secular drama developed, pantomime became a popular form of entertainment. Pantomime in England was probably first performed by "The Mummings," originally groups of country people or laborers who entertained at parties or special events during Christmastime. Present day pantomimes may be traditional ones repeated year after year. Many are historical or completely imaginative, utilizing topical events on the contemporary scene.

Although the Billanes enjoyed the Christmas plays provided for the public, it was not until 1953 that the possibility of writing and dramatizing their own family version was first suggested by a family friend. The first pantomime written by Mrs. Billane and acted out by the children was such a success that it was decided to perpetuate the custom and, as part of the Christmas festivities, produce a play each year. Of the nine pantomimes listed in the book, three were written and acted in England; the rest took place in America. Written in blank verse the plays vary in length depending upon the age of the children and the number of lines they could learn. Each documents the most important family events and, along with local topics and current interests, bears the imprint of that particular year as far as the Billane family is concerned.

Today the Billanes live in East Aurora, New York, in a home dubbed "High Lodge," so named in memory of their house in England, a converted shooting lodge overlooking the British heath.

The Wire That Fenced the West by Henry D. and Frances T. McCallum. Illustrated by William C. Ward. University of Oklahoma Press. 267 pages. $5.95.

Traditionally, farmers have been the fence-makers of the world. From ancient times tillers of the soil, in enclosing their plots, have erected stout defenses against intruders. Following the old precept of fencing to keep out the garden foe, the early settlers in colonial America built fences of rocks and wood, of hedges, sod, brush, and furrows, utilizing any and all surplus raw materials at hand as they cleared the land in their westward trek. By mid nineteenth century, the migrating line of homesteaders had reached the barren plains and prairies and halted. It was plain that new methods of fencing would have to be devised in a land filled with roaming cattle yet devoid of natural sources for agricultural barricades.

Despite lack of help from the East, where the needs of a new terrain could not be understood, much less estimated, and the open hostility of the cowmen who already occupied the West, sweeping innovations in fencing by the farmers, themselves, were already in the making. From DeKalb, Iowa, came the first real breakthrough with the simultaneous applications for patents for three different types of barbed wire from three separate men. This was the start; the beginning of a new industry which eventually fenced the West and, in so doing, completely changed the original concept of enclosure. Before 1873, fences were used primarily to keep animals and trespassers out, but after the invention of barbed wire, fences were built to keep animals in. So passed a colorful part of the old West; for from the romantic cowboy and the nester farmer, emerged the composite representative of both occupations, the modern western rancher.

Henry D. McCallum, who holds a master's degree from the University of Texas, first became interested in barbed wire in the course of his duties as a field geologist for the Humble Oil and Refining Company.

Wife and collaborator, Frances Tarlton McCallum, received her education at the University of Texas where she became a member of Beta Xi Chapter. Although the subject matter and the wire collecting lie entirely within her husband's domain, Mrs. McCallum admits her help was solicited in the study and research and, as an aspiring author, her interest sparked in the writing, itself. A member of the Fine Arts Colony Writers of Corpus Christi, Texas, she and Mr. McCallum make their home in Tyler, Texas.

San Francisco Firehouse Favorites—Great Recipes By The Bay City's Famous Firemen Chefs—by Tony Calvello, Bruce Harlow, Georgia Sackett and Shirley Sarvis. The Bobbs-Merrill Company, Inc. 186 pages. $10.00.

From celebrated San Francisco hail some of the most extraordinary amateur chefs in the country. These experts, of course, are the famous firemen cooks whose culinary exploits are legendary even in a city as gastronomically conscious as San Francisco. From the first day that city firemen began to cook and serve their own meals at the firehouses, the repertoire of palate tickling masterpieces grew to such epicurean heights that the men became the most discriminating and, consequently, the best fed gourmets in the Bay City. Their creative efforts generated so much interest that the firemen cooks and a quartet of authors combined talents to produce a stunningly handsome cookbook containing some of the outstanding recipes that are planned and prepared each day in the city's 50 firehouses.

The recipes selected run the gamut from soup to desserts. Generally they are hearty ones with heavy emphasis on meat dishes, for these are the meals that men both love to cook and eat. Reflecting the melting pot ancestry of San Francisco's population, the recipes are as cosmopolitan as the French, Italian, German, Irish, Scotch, Spanish, Armenian and Slavonian backgrounds of the firemen, themselves. However, whether plain old American or of some exotic ethnic descent, each recipe is a favorite of the firemen, cooked by a fellow fireman chef, and tested by taste and time.

By sharing their individual interests and talents the authors have not only achieved a striking and unusual cookbook but have preserved for all time something that is unique and very special in the field of cookery.

"To each his own" was the keynote as the four some garnered their talents in compiling the book. To Tony Calvello fell the task of assembling the jacket, binding and inside design as well as all the drawings in color and black and white;

while Bruce Harlow's responsibility lay in the handsome photographs with which the book is richly endowed. On the distaff side, Georgia Sackett conducted the historical research, planned and wrote the text and, of special interest to Kappa readers, it was Shirley Sarvis who prepared the recipes, tested and scaled the sometimes gargantuan portions down to family or dinner-party size. Member of Gamma Alpha Chapter, Miss Sarvis was born in Norton, Kansas, and attended Kansas State University where she majored in home economics and journalism. After graduating she joined the staff of a California magazine where as food editor she wrote monthly articles along with the developing and testing of new recipes. Now, free-lancing, she is also co-author of Cooking Scandinavian, a splendid travel-cookbook which was reviewed in a former issue of The Key.

A Vanished World by Anne Gertrude Sneller. Syracuse University Press. Illustrated by Nancy B. Perkins. 365 pages. $6.00.

For a variety of reasons we Americans, as a people, are strangers to our past. We are in an age of technological perfection. The vast and sudden changes wrought the last few decades are so far-reaching and immense, our sense of continuity is outraged and a common recent tradition seems an universal lack. It was for the agile pen of Anne Gertrude Sneller to bring to life the immediate past—to bridge this gap.

Succinctly stated in the Foreword are her words of explanation, "This is the story not only of a vanished childhood, but also of a vanished world. The speechways we grew up with are gone, the habits and customs changed, the standards of conduct have been replaced by others quite different. The background of trees and meadows and orchards, of white houses and red barns, of stump fences and stone walls has disappeared and is as irrecoverable as though it had never been. . . . But in age the land of lost content can be revisited." So, after 80 years of savoring the sights, sounds and textures of small town living, the author returns in memory to Cicero, New York, the town of her birth, the land of her lost content.

Blessed with almost total recall, she reports the memorabilia of a way of living as it existed for her family and friends in the last half and at the turn of the nineteenth century. Here is much more than a family journal, however, for within the geneology of births and deaths go apt descriptions that might depict the raising of a barn, the place and work of women, the nature of the church, of a plank road or the art of elocution. It is a fascinating historical account of Americana. It is also the diary of old rural America and of its people, and any farming community the length and breadth of the nation could well be its subject and its counterpart.

Born in 1883 on the farm described in her book, Anne Gertrude Sneller attended the district school in Cicero, New York, graduating from Syracuse High School as valedictorian of the class of 1901. Member of B B<sup>A</sup> Chapter and  $\Phi$  B K at St. Lawrence University, she received her B.A. degree summa cum laude in 1906. Her teaching career began in Schenectady, New York, the same year and continued in 1914 at North High School in Syracuse where Miss Sneller taught French, German and Latin as well as her major subject, English, until her retirement in 1940. A former student of 30 years ago has said, "Anne Sneller illuminated whatever she touched . . . She did not teach—she awakened hungers, opened eyes, unsealed ears, quickened imaginations." These same qualities seem apparent in A Vanished World, the author's first book, published when she was 80 after five years of writing and a lifetime of living. At present the author lives in the same house her father, Jacob Sneller, bought over 70 years ago in Cicero, New York.

Outlook on Space by F. T. Evans and H. D. Howard. George Allen & Unwin Ltd., London, England. Illustrated by Miss J. Richardson. 179 pages. 28 shillings net in U.K.

Ever since the International Geophysical Year of 1957, space activities have been dramatically demonstrating that the peoples of the Earth must either begin to think more internationally or must submit to the passive role of on-looker as the prestige struggle between the United States and Russia continues overhead.

Determined to avoid just apathetic acceptance of what was going on in the skies above, a small band of public and globally spirited English citizens actively took up the cudgel of participation. Labeling themselves "Trustees of Space" these space age disciples, little more than four years ago, set about the business of providing the atmosphere necessary to create and stimulate a "more informed and vigilant public opinion" both at home and eventually abroad. Their first step in this direction resulted in Outlook on Space, a comprehensive survey of the entire subject of outer space.

Essentially a layman's guide to space, this book serves a twofold purpose: first, as a refresher course by covering in a general way the most significant facts discovered to date, the achievements already accomplished, and the future projects presently on the space agenda of all the countries involved; and, secondly, presentation of the political implications by discussing the part that international organizations can play regarding the world-wide future of space activities. Thus, a primary object of the book in tracing the growth and development from the past of both space research and international organizations is to show the growing relationship between the two.

As authoring such a book implies, Francis T. Evans has long been interested in the connections between science and politics. A graduate of Cambridge he is, at present, lecturing at the Borough Polytechnic. A 1913 member of Beta Epsilon Chapter at Barnard in New York City, co-author, Helen Dana Howard, taught Latin until extended travel abroad introduced her to her English husband, Alexander Howard, whom she married in 1923. The mother of four children, she and her husband lived in London and Sussex, and it was not until Mr. Howard's death six years ago that the author reverted to an old preoccupation. Something of a schoolteacher at heart, she "had, for many years, wished to write a text book dealing with current events from an international point of view for use in current events classes." As chairman of Trustees of Space in London, an old hobby and dream has now come true.

Readers will be interested to know that Trustees of Space in their continued effort to promote a world point of view and to keep abreast of the rapidly changing aspect of space research now offer Further Outlook on Space, a newsletter to be issued twice yearly. Its mission is to keep the reader currently up to date on all space news, particularly co-operative activities and space law discussions and to afford a journalistic platform from which scientists, educators and others may express their views. An annual subscription for 10 shillings or U. S. $1.50 (check or postal order) is available and may be ordered from Trustees of Space, 22 Greville Rd., London N.W.6, England. Inquiries concerning Outlook on Space may be made through local bookstores to Publishers, Messrs. George Allen & Unwin Ltd., 40 Museum St., London, W.C.I., England.

Get Well Naturally—Nature's Way To Health by Linda Clark. Devin-Adair Company. 383 pages. $5.95.

Author of Stay Young Longer, Linda Clark is already well established in the fields of health and nutrition. Editor of a well-known health magazine, columnist for two health publications, she is also a popular speaker at nutritional meetings and conventions and, for the past three years has conducted a daily radio program on the West Coast.

The newly published Get Well Naturally could well be a sequel to the author's first successful book, now in its fourth printing. It, too, concerns itself with matters pertaining to health although the approach is different. Material selected for Stay Young Longer was constantly measured by the yardstick of scientific respectability. However, in Get Well Naturally the reader will find a conglomeration, a mixture of the orthodox, unorthodox and folk remedies, for the author's purpose is to report each and every treatment that has helped to alleviate suffering in any way including those that only offer a glimmer of hope.

The book is divided into three sections, the first the most unorthodox and, therefore, undoubtedly the most controversial. It covers unusual treatments, although such familiar methods of healing as chiropractic, naturopathic, osteopathic and spiritual healing are discussed as well as the more provocative subjects of homeopathy, herbal medicine, auto-therapy, acupuncture, human electronics and the Cayce readings. The second part presents recent findings in the field of nutrition with specific chapters on the "magic mineral" magnesium and the oriental system of macrobiotics along with explanatory paragraphs devoted to the star exercise. The final section compiles in alphabetical order 22 common degenerative ailments which plague mankind and lists some of the natural methods of treatment which have been useful in dealing with them.

Throughout the book, the author stresses the fact that she does not prescribe or recommend the remedies which have been assembled. Her responsibility has been that of a reporter who has researched and gathered the facts and passed them on for the scrutiny and final judgment of the reader. She does contend, however, that since it is the relief of human suffering that is of primary importance, it behooves all of us to keep an open mind on all matters pertaining to health. History has well demonstrated the oft-times maligned unorthodox treatment of to-day may be acclaimed tomorrow as science's greatest discovery.

Linda Clark, nee Margaret Lee Slusher, is a member of Beta Omega Chapter at the University of Oregon. Her educational training includes education, psychology and an M.A. in nutrition. In addition to being a writer, editor, speaker and reporter, the author is also Mrs. Foster Bradshaw, a busy housewife, mother and grandmother. At present the Bradshaws make their home in Carmel Valley, California.

The Other Side of the Sheet: An Experiment in Personal Journalism by Sid and Barb Landfield. Exposition Press. 192 pages. $4.00.

Although both members of this husband-wife team are products and graduates of the city's daily newspaper, their inclinations and convictions now place them squarely on the rural side of the journalistic fence, the weekly press. To-day Sid Landfield, veteran newspaperman of over 20 years' experience, is the editor and co-publisher of the Democrat-Message, a weekly newspaper, in the small farming community of Mount Sterling in west-central Illinois. But it was a Chicago born, reared and educated author, who served as managing editor of the suburban Batavia, Illinois Herald, and before that spent many years as a crime reporter and assistant to the city editor of the Chicago Sun-Times. Actually it was in the Chicago arena that he met his wife and co-author, for she, too, was a former Chicago crime reporter for the City News Bureau.

Both Landfields agree that the differences between a daily and a weekly newspaper may be many, yet in each it is personal journalism that has the greatest appeal. Straight reporting may be a necessity but, just as the special-feature writer and the columnist of the daily are the best-loved and best-read, this selfsame warm, intimate touch is the weekly newspaper's strongest forte.

To prove their point, the authors have gathered together a collection of their own columns, essays and editorials which have appeared in the Democrat-Message during the last four years.

Selected for their timelessness and general interest, the articles cover a variety of topics, objectively and subjectively. Visits to the contemporary scene in the assassination of President Kennedy, an open letter to his son, the pure courage of a Negro child on his first day in an all white school are intermingled with character sketches, tales of fun and fantasy and small gems of prose paced to the rhythm of family, children and household living.

Barbara Jenswold Landfield, co-writer, wife and mother of four, was born in Duluth, Minnesota, and educated at both Mills College in California and the University of Michigan where she became a member of Beta Delta Chapter. As well as her weekly "Barbed Wire" column of comment for the Democrat-Message, Mrs. Landfield is also the author of encyclopedia articles and is the editor of a publication circulating in that field. As the essays in The Other Side of the Sheet indicate, the newspaper writings of the Landfields have won several top awards and have drawn wide critical acclaim.

Rim of the Ridge by Cena C. Draper. Criterion Books, Inc. Illustrated by Emil Weiss. 157 pages. $3.50. For ages 8 to 12.

Tenderly reminiscent of a time and a place, the author returns to scenes of her youth in this gentle story of an orphan boy and the Missouri ridgeland where he was raised. It could well be a tale of the countryside, of coons and coon hunting, of the big boar, Old Two Toes, master strategist of the Ridge; but, first and foremost, it is the study of a boy's discovery, the story of Punk.

For Punk it is a time of quiet desperation, of innate hunger: a yearning for something, he knows not what. Wavering between the austerity of a bittersweet granny and the elusive will-o-the-wisp needs of his soul, it took the words of a woodsman to set him free. "A boy must run wild with the winds, his feet must touch the earth, his eyes must reach the sky . . . He must fill himself with the song of the birds and the streams, with the beauty of the night, its stars and moon . . . You can't halter-tie a boy, . . . The time comes when he gets that hungering in him . . . Come that time, whether or not, and nothing can hold him back" So, "as quiet as the fox in the brush, as swift as the hawk on wing, as stealthily as the deer in the wild meadow" he and Hunny turn to the woods in their quest: to the serenity of nature, to the allure of masculine lore and the joys of freedom. Refreshed in body and spirit, cleansed of his discontent, Punk, healed of his inner ills, returns to his granny to make his peace, to resolve their differences and, with newfound maturity, bring to a joyless household the beauty and wisdom of the whole outdoors.

Recently selected for the New York Children's Council's list of best books, Rim of the Ridge follows Ridge Willoughby and Mother, the Overseer as the author's third venture into children's literature. These are suggested family fare, too, for in Mrs. Draper's words, "Adults need, now and then, to view life again with the fresh, clear eyes of youth . . . In no other world than childhood is the vision so shining, the imagination so great."

Along with Papa Says, the author's one adult novel, Mrs. Draper has also written five prize-winning plays which have been produced by the Kansas City Childrens Community Theater and have been published in anthologies. A member of Theta Chapter at the University of Missouri the author, as Mrs. Mont C. Draper, busies herself with extensive travel, three grandchildren and family affairs, as well as the numerous club and civic activities of Warrensburg.

by DOROTHY MANNING FRASURE

B Y-West Virginia

I have been in Nancy since October 18 and spent the first two weeks exploring the city and getting used to the peculiarities and the delights of the Gallic temperament.

Classes ground slowly to a start after the All Saints' Day holiday. Within about two weeks I could tell just which courses I wanted to pursue for their duration. A French student registers for a diploma not for individual courses. He receives no grades, and class attendance is not obligatory. What he learns is entirely his own responsibility. So, the first week, he attends any or all lectures offered by the University, and then gradually eliminates those he doesn't want or can't use.

I have registered as an auditor in the Faculty of Letters, and am following courses in Gide, Valéry, Beaumarchais, Stendahl, Montaigne, 18th century French history, and French interior decoration of the 18th and 19th centuries. This is an average load for a French student, since each lecture meets only one hour a week, and I based my selection of courses upon the quality of the professors.

In addition, I am sitting in on courses designed especially for foreign students in grammar, syntax, and general cultural background of France. A complete registration for these courses accords me full privileges in the library, student cafeteria and services.

That's the official formal part of what I'm doing. The very best part, though, is that through my father's old friend, Mme. Andre Garland, I have been received very warmly into the midst of three French families. And this is a gold mine.

Mme. Garland, the busy mother of five and professor of French and Latin in the Lycee Jeanne d'Arc, has welcomed me into her family as her "grande fille" and has insisted that her home is open to me always. This is wonderful, because it is practically a negation of the usual French reserve or "froideur" toward strangers, and especially toward foreigners. A Frenchman "opens" his home only to his very oldest and closest family friends.

Through Mme. Garland, I have been received as warmly into the home of Dr. Pierquin, M.D. Four of his six children are students at the University. With the Pierquins, all six children, parents, aunts, uncles and grandparents, I had the good fortune to spend one of France's most important religious feast days, la Toussaint. It was also with the Pierquins that I saw my first legitimate French theatre in Claudel's Le Soulier de Satin, presented by the Comédie de l'Est.

My third French family is that of my landlord, M. Magnin. Mme. Magnin has been very gracious and has several times invited me to dinner and to join her and her friends at concerts. In fact she seems more a hostess than a landlady. The four small, but very well-behaved Magnin children are full of stories for their American lodger—about their primary school and their games.

It is also fairly easy to become acquainted with French students at the University, and to strike up conversations with shopkeepers.

I had heard that French society could be very tight and cold to foreigners, and that a stranger underwent "inspection" for as long as a year sometimes before he received the final compli-

Editor's note:

Dorothy Manning Frasure, B Y-West Virginia, received a Kappa Foreign Study Scholarship, made possible by the Houston Alumnae Association, for study at the University of Nancy in France. On September 11, 1965 she and Robert Frasure were married and together they sailed for Southampton on September 22.

Robert Frasure is a Research Fellow at the London School of Economics and is in the doctorate program of Duke University for the current academic year. He intends to extend his master's thesis, The British Liberal Party, into a doctoral dissertation, and eventually into a book, at the advice of his thesis director.

HURRICANE VICTIMS in New Orleans get a boost from Carolyn Crusel, B O-Newcomb, on behalf of the college's nine sororities. Carolyn, Panhellenic president, is shown presenting a check for $853 to J. M. Verges, secretary-treasurer of the Hurricane Betsy Fund. The money, along with gifts from the fraternities at Tulane University, is being used to aid victims of the hurricane which struck the New Orleans area last September.

In addition to monetary aid, the sororities and fraternities also collected clothing and toys and did volunteer work in community shelters and clean-up operations.

ALUMNAE NEWS

To the Moon and Beyond is the theme of the United States Space Program and a B Θ Kappa from the University of Oklahoma is learning a bit about being the woman behind the Astronaut. Helen Mary Walker Garriott, is the wife of one of the new scientist-astronauts. Dr. Owen Garriott, an associate professor of electrical engineering in Stanford University's Radioscience Laboratory has specialized in research on the ionosphere—the electrified region of the atmosphere 70-300 miles above the earth's surface that reflects radio signals and makes long distance radio communication possible.

Dr. Garriott began his training for the space program last fall. He says his wife was as enthusiastic as he over his change of career direction. "It presents a rare opportunity for an ionospheric scientist, who is normally forced to study his subject from the ground, to actually get up there and surround himself with it."

What is a Kappa?

with humble apologies to Alan Beck, author of What is a Girl?

"Between the excited expectancy of freshman week and the poised competence of womanhood there emerges a delightful creature called a Kappa Kappa Gamma. Kappas come in assorted shapes and sizes but all Kappas have the same goal.

"Kappas are found everywhere—in school, at weddings, having babies, working at careers, joining P.T.A.'s and just generally helping. Nobody else can do so many things so well. Nobody else gets so much fun out of talking, working for a good cause, talking, planning a party, talking, helping others and—talking. Nobody else can fix dinner, plan a meeting, bandage a scraped knee, answer the telephone and explain to her husband about that funny noise in the car—all at the same time.

"She is teacher, helper, guide, sister—a busy, friendly, energetic bundle of fun. When you don't know where to turn—when you've lost the most important lecture notes of the semester, when you move to a community miles from home, when the children are too much for you, when your husband needs a golf partner or you just feel blue—turn it into two shades of blue—call a Kappa."

The big heart in "Big D"

Dallas alumnae totaled up profits of over $4500 from their annual Charity Ball; of this a donation of $1300 was presented to the Dallas Services for Blind Children. This money will be used for the purchase of artificial eyes. For the past seven years Kappa alumnae have given many hours binding the braille and large-type books for the public school children's use. Library books, braille calendars and pre-school nursery books are also bound.

Dallas alumnae at presentation of check to the Services for Blind Children are May Irvin Badt, B  $\Sigma$ -Texas, Mrs. Lucie D. Lade, executive director of the Dallas Services for the Blind Children; Marion McLaren Roever, B M-Colorado, and Mary Elizabeth Gallaher Cadis, T A-Kansas State.

Arcadia painters are Virginia Egge Brown, T  $\Sigma$ -California at Los Angeles; Carolee Walker Shanley,  $\Delta$  H-Utah; Clare Upson Finlayson, T  $\Psi$ -Maryland; and Mary Jane Beachler Lightcap, T E-Pittsburgh.

From Arcadia with love

Arcadia members donned working clothes and devoted the day to cleaning and painting the adobe front of the Creative Art's Center, as a tribute to the late Patricia Webb Gunther,  $\Gamma$   $\Delta$ -Purdue, who was very active in this local philanthropy. Creative Arts offers 26 different workshops in all types of creative expression for both adults and children. Arcadia Kappas also sponsor a morning lecture series featuring such diversified interests as a pianist-humorist and a psychologist speaking on personal improvement.

Flowering pink geraniums were table prizes for 50 tables at the LaGrange, Illinois Breakfast Bridge. The morning benefit cleared \$300 for the Fraternity scholarship program and the local "Helping Hand" Agency. Left to right: Anne Thomas Goulding,  $\Delta$  O-Iowa State, Mary Wham Shelton, B  $\Delta$ -Illinois, president, and Constance Priebe Barth,  $\Gamma$   $\Theta$ -Drake.

Addressing flyers for the 14th annual Holiday House Tour in Kansas City are Miriam Carter Kizer,  $\Theta$ -Missouri, Rebekah Thompson Eldridge,  $\Omega$ -Kansas, Mary Atwill Steele,  $\Theta$ -Missouri, and Jane Waring McCoy,  $\Omega$ -Kansas, Association president. Over the past 10 years more than \$27,000 has been realized. "Kappesries," hand-made tapestries by Kappas, are a highlight of decorations to sell.

Sangria (burgundy with fruit juices) and Paella were featured delicacies of the Spanish Fiesta night of the Northern New Jersey alumnae. A strolling musician added to the evening festivities which netted \$150 for the local philanthropy. Preparing paella for the dinner are Jeannette Knight Johnson and Martha Coler Risch, both  $\Psi$ -Cornell.

Sandra MacKenzie Bolin,  $\Gamma \Sigma$ -Winnipeg, president of the Winnipeg Alumnae Association, presents a \$1,000 check to Mrs. A. E. Richards, treasurer of the Children's Hospital Board as Patricia Watson,  $\Gamma \Sigma$ -Manitoba, Association treasurer, looks on. The check represents money collected through Association projects for the past eight years. Money raisers have included auctions, bake sales, bridge parties, hat show and other means. The group consists of about 20 active members and they have voted to continue the project for another ten years.

Detroit alumnae work with Detroit's Rehabilitation Institute as their philanthropy. Recent gifts include a refrigerator, rotisserie and money to purchase beauty parlor supplies. The alumnae have a birthday party every three months for the patients, type a monthly newspaper and do volunteer work. The junior group makes tray favors. At a birthday party Etta Jean Craig,  $B \Delta$ -Michigan, Mary Ellen Foster Comly,  $\Delta \Delta$ -Monmouth (rehabilitation chairman), Virginia Bennett Sweeny,  $\Gamma P$ -Allegheny, Blanche Gore Shreve,  $\Sigma$ -Nebraska, Laura Smith Huette-man,  $B \Delta$ -Michigan, Marguerite Chapin Maire,  $B \Delta$ -Michigan, and Kathryn Patterson Asmus,  $\Delta \Gamma$ -Michigan State.

More receipts from the Key to Kentucky Kitchens published by the Lexington alumnae are presented to the Manchester Center and the Madeline McDowell Breckinridge Fresh Air Camp. From left are Mary Clay Goodwin,  $B X$ -Kentucky, president of the Fresh Air Camp board, Mrs. T. E. Van Meter, executive secretary of the Center, and Nancybelle Moss Rose,  $B X$ -Kentucky, Lexington Alumnae association president.

"Sea and Ski" provided the appropriate theme for the Minneapolis alumnae benefit party to raise funds for Mental Health and Kappa philanthropies. Knitting needles flew as alumnae turned out perky ski caps which were prizes along with sun hats. Left to right Jean Wendlandt Moritz,  $\Gamma$   $\Theta$ -Drake, Anne Rolley Pengally,  $\Gamma$  T-North Dakota, and Claire Hale Tyra, B K-Idaho.

San Diego alumnae presented a check for \$389.44 to the Home Training program of Starlight Center, school for retarded children in Chula Vista. The alumnae have assisted this program since 1961 by constructing kits of specially designed toys and learning devices for the volunteer teachers to use in training the children. They also have provided funds for books for the parents, bookshelves, and travel funds for the volunteers, as well as gifts and party decorations for the children. Funds for the work have been raised by bridge tournaments, silent auction, recipe sale, Old Globe theater party, and contributions from individual members. The program, is designed to help young, multiple-handicapped children in their own homes. Pictured are Joann Smith Lefferts, B K-Idaho, Association president; Dorothy Sherman Stokes, Province Director of Alumnae; and Beverly Ann Burton Richards,  $\Gamma$  I-Washington U.

St. Louis Juniors plan ahead

On the fall calendar for the alumnae of the St. Louis Junior Association is the charity project for Children's Hospital. One hundred black and orange leis will be made for the hospital's Halloween party.

Diamonds in Miami

The Fashions and Diamonds style show in Miami has provided a winner in benefits. The $5.00 tickets include a champagne luncheon before viewing the latest in clothes and jewels.

Oklahoma taste treat

"Moods in Foods" was the theme of Oklahoma City's project this year. Four separate tables each decorated and serving an entire meal with a distinctive theme was the feature of the Tasting Luncheon.

Honors for Kappa Alumnae

Seattle Women of the Year

Anne Holmes Goodfellow, B II-Washington, with her daughter, Nancy Goodfellow Walker, also B II, and granddaughter Clara were honored by the Seattle Times in its second annual spotlight on women. Mrs. Goodfellow was the first recipient of the Doris Bronson Morrill Memorial Plaque for distinguished service to her city, fraternity and community. Mrs. Walker has completed a two year term on the Human Rights Commission, the only woman member. Both have served on the Public Library Board and many other civic organizations.

Outstanding Service

Elsie Sweeney, M-Butler, shown with the award given to her by the Columbus, Indiana Chamber of Commerce for outstanding service to the city.

Cited by French Ministry

One of France's highest civilian orders, The Chevalier de l'Ordre des Palmes Academiques, which the French Ministry of National Education presents twice yearly for contributions to education has been given to Marjorie Percy Bowen, T X-George Washington. This award is the oldest civil distinction in France and is awarded to teaching personnel in various fields. The silver palm leaf insignia was presented to Mrs. Bowen by Edouard Morot-Sir, French cultural counselor for organizing, supervising and administering the FLES (foreign language in elementary schools) program in the District of Columbia public schools. It is a serious program of second language learning; at present there are 39 teachers (all specialists with native or near-native accents) teaching in 94 schools involving about 10,225 pupils.

Wins Missouri Press Award

The Missouri Press Women contest awarded Sue Ann Wood, Θ-Missouri, a first place—in the news story, daily newspaper category and third in the feature story, daily newspaper division.

L.A. Times Woman of the Year

Added honors have come to Helen Ryons Nix, Σ-Nebraska. Selected as a Los Angeles Times Woman of the Year, Mrs. Nix was the subject of a profile giving her background and remarkable contributions to the Los Angeles cultural and social structure. She is the chairman of the affiliated committees of the Symphony Association, was last year honored with the Episcopal diocese Bishop's Award of Merit for service to her church. In 1964 she received the United Way Women Committee's Gold Key, given for volunteer work for the benefit of the whole community over a period of at least ten years. Helen Nix is the wife of the presiding Judge of Los Angeles Superior Court.

Theater director

Singled out as a "Pointer of Interest" recently in Grosse Pointe News in Grosse Pointe, Michigan was Loris Jeffries Hadden, Ψ-Cornell. Always vitally interested in little theater groups wherever they have lived, Loris last winter directed the Grosse Pointe Community Theater's production of Inherit the Wind. Together, the Haddens captured a "Clarence" (the GPCT equivalent of an "Oscar") for the best producers of the first musical they ever did, Kiss Me Kate. Loris also directed a children's summer theater and is active in local radio work. Here Loris stands in front of the portrait of her husband's great, great grandfather.

Her honor the commissioner

Named Springfield, Ohio's first woman commissioner is Betty McCauley Brunk, B N-Ohio State. Taking part in government is something that Betty has always wanted to do. Now that her children are grown has given her the opportunity. She feels that more women should take on active part in politics and government even though when combined with household chores there isn't much time left to enjoy hobbies.

Receives plaque

Dorothy Sebree Cassill, B II-Washington, was awarded the annual Doris Bronson Morrill Memorial Plaque at the initiation banquet. She has served on the boards of the Women's University Club and the University of Washington Alumnæ and is a charter member of the Assistance League.

Seventy-five years a K K Γ

Caroline Foster Wallace, B B<sup>A</sup>-St. Lawrence, was honored as a 75 year member by the Winter Park alumnæ last fall. Mrs. Wallace attending the 71st reunion of her college class saw her granddaughter graduate from the same university. She is an active member of the Dorcas society of the Congregational Church and has completed more than 128 dresses for the charity work of the society.

Columbus Fraternity Woman of the Year

Mary Lou Torbert Zollinger, B N-Ohio State, was selected the Fraternity Woman of the Year by the Interfraternity Panhellenic Council of Columbus, Ohio. The Fraternity Man of the year was Robin Bell, Φ Δ Θ, husband of Isabel Enderlin Bell, B N-Ohio State.

Above, left, Irene Simpson Van Brunt,  $\Sigma$ -Nebraska, is the president of Supreme Chapter, The P.E.O. Sisterhood. Mrs. Van Brunt has served through all seven offices of Nebraska State Chapter as well as holding offices in the Supreme Chapter. She has been president of the Omaha Wellesley Club, a director of the University of Nebraska Alumni Association and has held many offices on the Women's Board of her church in Omaha. She is an avid collector of recipes and has an interesting collection of antique silver. Right, Beatrice Lee Gerlinger, B II-Washington, has an outstanding record in civic, cultural, financial and fraternity circles. She has recently presided over the Portland Women's Convalescent Home Association during the planning and construction of a 20 bed convalescent hospital for women of limited means. She is in demand throughout the state for her play review presentations. Mrs. Gerlinger has served the State Department of Education as secretary during surveys of various children's groups. A former Province officer, Bea still continues active in local Kappa alumnae work. At one time she managed the Portland Office of the American National Company.

The work of artists Polly Knipp Hill, B  $\Delta$ -Illinois, and George Snow Hill (left) was exhibited at a tea given in their honor by the Clearwater Bay Association. Mrs. Hill, an etcher, works in most of the graphic media and specializes in portrait drawings and paintings in pastels and oils. Her water-colors are in private collections and she has also illustrated several books. The Hills have exhibited as man and wife in a series at the Fergil Galleries in New York and other museums. She holds a Kappa Alumnae Achievement award. Hostess Mary Fay Bissel, B  $\Delta$ -Pennsylvania, is pictured with the Hills.

50 YEARS A KAPPA

Alumnæ from the Hinsdale, La Grange and Oak Park-River Forest joined together to celebrate Founder's Day where Helen Ludlow Messenger, B  $\Lambda$ -Illinois, was honored as a 50 year member. Adele Messenger Mayer, B  $\Lambda$ -Illinois, pins the gold fleur-de-lis on her mother while daughter Martha Messenger Thomas, B  $\Lambda$ -Illinois, watches.

Receiving the 50 year award from Ramona Smith Dixon, B  $\Theta$ -Oklahoma, is Margaret Crahan Jones, B  $\Pi$ -Washington, honored by Northern Virginia alumnæ.

Palm Beach County Alumnæ pinned the 50 year fleur-de-lis on Frances Neff Steele, I-DePauw (center), and Katherine Stevens Harper, T-Northwestern. Left is president Suzanne Gladfetter Kibiger, E-Illinois Wesleyan.

Alice Jordan Black, B  $\Phi$ -Montana, received the 50 year pin from her daughter, Anna Jane Black Schlossman, I T-North Dakota. During the ceremony a telegram was read from Marjorie Schlossman Ludwig, T-Northwestern.

Other 50 year Kappas

Helen Garrigues Smith, X-Minnesota
Lucille "Dot" Duorbar Eckberg, Γ P-Allegheny
Glover Gorton Berry, Β Θ-Oklahoma

A party, a party

Tri-Cities first 50 year member Marjorie Hayes Campbell, K-Hillsdale, found the presentation of her 50 year pin a marvelous tonic. Although not at all well according to Nancy Quintin Youmans, Γ H-Washington State, alumnae president, she "put off her surgeon, had her hair done, and had a new dark blue dress made with which she wore a light blue carnation corsage with blue and blue ribbons.

"The pink roses held by Mrs. Campbell were her gift to us—one was given to each of us who attended her party. Each stem was tied with a blue and blue ribbon just below the flower. Mrs. Campbell told us that this was her chapter flower always used on any special occasion. The idea of a chapter flower is new to the rest of us and we think it is a beautiful custom, very much worth reviving.

"I wish any Kappa who takes the honor of wearing her key for granted could have been with us on this afternoon. Knowing how ill Mrs. Campbell is, I expected a very sad ceremony. But the sadness was only a fleeting realization that a 50-year pin inevitably means there can be few more milestones. Mrs. Campbell made her party a happy one—she glowed and sparkled and told us amusing stories of her life in other parts of the country. She is still ill, and she still needs surgery. But that little golden fleur-de-lis means so very much to this wonderful woman that she was able to rise to the occasion of its presentation to her and make it a beautiful, stirring experience for all of her guests.

Mrs. Campbell surrounded by Tri-City members (standing): Marguerite Newport Rathbun, Γ H-Washington State, Dorothy Quinn Bursey, Γ Δ-Purdue, Nancy Quinton Youmans, Γ H-Washington State, Mrs. H. M. Parker, a friend of Mrs. Campbell, (seated) Catherine Miller Lewis, Γ P-Allegheny, and Mrs. Campbell's daughter, Nancy Biggs.

Reunion: sixteen June jollities

Edith R. Macauley and Helen L. Clark, both Β Δ-Michigan, write:

"For 16 years Gladys Race Condit, Β Δ-Michigan, has been hostess for six to twenty-three of her Kappa sisters for a week-end of relaxation at Sunnyslake Ranch, Glennie, Michigan. She has given over her main lodge and three lake-side vacationers' and deer hunters' cottages to the visitors who come at her invitation in mid-June. From Detroit, Port Huron, Grand Rapids, Toledo, Indianapolis, Buffalo and Scarsdale, New York, from Massachusetts, North Carolina, and Canada, the cars converge, bringing Beta Deltas to the wooded wilderness for hikes, swims, bridge and scrabble games, bountiful food, and the blending of old times with present-day activities in talk fests."

occasions. The focal point of the room is a large round glass top table surrounded by traditional chairs upholstered in flame colored silk. The remainder of the aluminum chairs and tables are in soft green. To carry out the garden room effect, some of our talented girls, under the supervision of our interior decorator, Elaine Clintsman, hand-painted branches of white blossoms on the walls.

The house director's quarters, Kappa Room in traditional blue, girl's snack room, maid's room, powder room, kitchen and commissary complete the main floor.

Our full 60 by 100 foot basement includes chapter room, two study rooms, typing room, project rooms, archives, laundry room and last but not least, an impressive boiler room.

The second and third floors consist of 27 bedrooms and two sleeping porches which are currently housing 67 girls. Pressing rooms, including drip-dry facilities, are located on both the second and third floors. In addition, the second floor boasts a lounge and the third floor is the gateway to the sun deck, a very popular spot.

Landscaping was underwritten by the Mothers' Club and generous parents who contributed to the cause following a sneak preview tour.

Our new house, was designed by the Fraternity architect, Frances Sutton Schmitz and her husband, Herbert, with construction supervised locally by architect William May. Financing was arranged by the Fraternity.

Inspiration and courage

organizations to which many a former pledge as active or alumna has contributed a little bit of greatness.

Through the years many Beta Omega members have served the Fraternity as Province officers. Included in this group are Iota Province officers, Marguerite H. Rohse (1917-19), Dorothy Duniway (1921-25), Mildred Broughton Hopkins (1925-29), Dorothy Flegel (1927-21), Betty Ann Macduff (1935-37), Eleanor French Bowe (1951-55), and currently Margaret Kerr Bourassa who has been Province Director of Alumnae since 1963. In Kappa Province Alysone Hales deLaveaga served as Director of Chapters from 1949 to 1951 and in Theta Province Mary Geisler Morgan was Director of Chapters from 1959 to 1961.

A volunteer in Alaska

took over the gavel of the presidency of this group. The highlight of her year in office was the awarding of a student scholarship at Alaska Methodist University in Anchorage. The $275 scholarship was contributed to the Panhellenic group by the Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania and Yakima, Washington Panhellenic Associations. These groups wanted to give money to help someone who had suffered during the earthquake and needed financial assistance to continue with their education.

The Anchorage City Panhellenic is ten years old. It is a self supporting group and has a membership which includes 19 National Panhellenic Conference groups. There are approximately 15 Kappas in the Anchorage area who have been active off and on in this organization. Each year the Panhellenic Association gives a spring tea for all graduating high school senior girls. In the summer an informal coke party is given for girls going to schools on sorority campuses, and at Christmas time a get-together is given at Alaska Methodist University for college students home for the holidays. There are no sororities or fraternities on Alaskan campuses.

Another Kappa who belonged to Anchorage City Panhellenic was a pledge sister of Jan's, Sally Sams Tomlinson Γ A-Kansas State. Sally's husband was a F102 pilot at Elmendorf and once before in their Air Force careers they had been stationed together. Both Kappas are back in the United States proper.

After the first World War was declared a Beta Omega wrote, "We were all going away from college, not knowing what the fall or the beginning of next year would bring. But, we all knew that, having gone through the year together, we were all finer and better for the things that we had had to do and the decisions we had had to make in our fraternity life." Similarly today, in spite of the sometimes bewildering demands of college experiences, girls find inspiration and courage in their sisterhood at Beta Omega.

Are you still wondering what "Sigwabs, Vegoks, and Zarchaks" mean? We are, too.

If you are an alumna of Beta Omega and did not receive your newsletter for 1965, please send a card with your name, class, and address to us at 821 East 15th, Eugene, Oregon.

A letter from Nancy

ment of being invited into a Frenchman's home. Perhaps this is exaggerated, but again and again, I am overwhelmed at my good fortune in being made to feel completely at home here. Of course, this is due to Mme. Garland, a very warm and wonderful person.

. . . My husband is in Surrey, England. Bob and I plan to meet in Paris the weekend of December 4-7 for our first taste of that city, and to be there during the national election. We plan to spend our Christmas holidays in an old Inn in the Cotswolds, The Bull Hotel, in England.

During my "free time," I've been exploring Nancy, her tenor and her architecture, going to concerts, plays, and cinema, and investigating French newspapers and magazines, television and radio. Armistice Day I went to a political rally for Tixier-Vignancour. As to be expected, his prepared political speech was boring. But the French solved that problem by starting a couple of brawls in the bleachers.

In all, this is a perfectly wonderful year. I have never been so busy, or found being busy so invigorating. It is with the greatest difficulty that I am restraining this pen from going on and on to tell you all the new and wonderful things that have happened in just the last month. I find myself "dashing off" 10 and 15 page "notes" to family and friends. I can't really tell you how very happy I am to be here. Travel is such an exciting way to learn things. And I thank you and the Houston Kappas very much for helping to make it possible.
